Guam - The 2014 GWCC Women's Leadership Retreat aims to inspire, empower, and motivate. On Friday, September 26th and Saturday, September 27th, the Guam Women's Chamber of Commerce will be hosting a leadership retreat at the LeoPalace Resort and Spa.

Founding board member Siska Hutapea said, "Our vision is to have Guam be an island community that brings about an economy business, commerce and trait."

The guest speaker will be Crystal Moradi, who is the senior vice-president of PLJ Income. She has been a featured speaker at many events including the Screen Actors Guild, Mary Kay, and the Los Angeles Ultimate Women's Expo."She will give and provide a workshop on all levels, for those young and those as experienced as I am," continued Hutapea. "This is going to be our first retreat for Guam. Women make up an important component, and it takes a bigger and bigger role every time."

According to Hutapea, you can expect many of the island's businesswomen offering words of wisdom and sharing their stories. She said, "The road to success is littered with problems and lessons and what better way to improve your leadership qualities than learn from these successful women."

Seating is limited so if you would like to partake in this exciting weekend of motivation, registration for both days for members is $100 and $150 for non-members. You can visit <http://www.guamwcc.com> or call the Guam Women's Chamber of Commerce at 487-7022.
